When you visit our websites we collect internet log information and details of behaviour patterns. This allows us to monitor the number of visitors to the various parts of the site which also enables us to identify potential issues with the layout or functionality and the popularity of individual pages or sections.

We collect this information in a way which does not identify any individual persons.
We gather statistics about visitors to our website including demographic data about visitor age, gender, location (town) and interests where this is available but do not identify individuals. We will use this data to help us understand how visitors use our site and how we can improve their online experience. This information is processed in Google Analytics. You can read Google's Privacy Policies here:
